and Chinese, reported from Shanghai in despatches published this morning.

The officials of the legation express the strongest confidence in the accuracy of the telegram received at the legation yesterday, announcing that the inning of the British Naval Court of Inquiry at Shanghai in the Kow Shung case was iavorable to Japan.

This statement concerning the action of the court officials of the legation state was undoubtedly based upon beficial information, as was also the additional statement that the British Admiral had reported to his Government that in his opinion the sinking of the Kow Shung was justifiable.

The legation characterizes as unqualifiedly incorrect the assertion that, the commander of the Naniwa ordered his men to fire on the survivors from the Kow Shung who were struggling in the water.

Going on the Cam,

the Chinese-Japanese war has caused great activity among the manufacturers of small arms in this country is undisputed. The large concerns which make rifles and revolvers at llion, N. Y., and New Haven and Hartford, Conn., are reported to have increased their forces upon the receipt of large orders from the Japanese Government agents in this city.

George Geist, who had already awakcaused down into the cellar and discovered a good-sized blaze in the space between the celling and the store floor, directly underneath the oilsoaked wood, upon which stood Grocer Sandkuhl's kerosene oil tank.

The whole house was by this time full of smoke, and Geist ran up to bla apartments, where he found his wife and children still asieep. The children were nearly surfocated. He aroused Mrs. Geist, and they carried the little ones to the street.

These arms can be shipped on board any vessel and may be consigned to any port outside of those within the boundaries of the belligerents. They will not be sent direct to China or Japan, but may be sent to the consuls of either of the warring Governments at some neutral port and reshipped thence to their destination within the territory of either belligerent, subject, of course, to seizure by the ship of either power concerned in the war.

of course, to seizure by the ships of either power concerned in the war.

The Winchester Repeating Arms Company has a manufactory at New Haven, in which 1,700 hands are employed in making rapid-fire guns capable of sixty or seventy shots a minute. The manager of the New York agency of these works refused to-day to give any information as to the shipment of arms on board the British steamship Cam, now loading at the Atlantic docks in Brooklyn, for Chinese and Japanese ports, as exclusively told in yesterday's "Evening World." Manager Brough, of Hartley & Gra-

Manager Brough, of Hartley & Graham, agents of the Remington Arms Company, at Ilion, N. Y., also refused to tell whether his concern was shipping arms on the Cam.

"We sell guns in any quantity to any one who pays for them," said Mr. Brough, "and they may be delivered free on board of any vessel in this port. Our responsibility ends when our goode are delivered. But such arms may not be consigned to the ports of beiligerents. We had been shipping arms in amail quantities right along to China and Jayan before the declaration of war."

Collector Kilbreth, when seen by an "Evening World" reporter, said he had so official information of the shipment of arms on board the Cam, and he remaded to give an opinion on the subject. I never attempt to cross a bridge until feach it," said the Collector.

It is not believed that any ships like those for the Brazilian Government will fatted out in this port for either the Chinese or Japanese Government. The fact that England has stopped the vessel recently fitted out in one of its ports was commented on to-day in this city as significant, and showed that that Government was not going to repeat the Alabama episode.

Until then, he and nounces, he will punch the bag, juggle dumbells, wrestle with Jimmy Carroll and do some sparring. He has not yet found out how much of his old speed he retains, and doesn't expect to until he has had three rounds with the Australian, who, he says, is an unknown quantity to him. This looks like a good tip to Griffo as to Jack's line of fighting, at least in the early part of the bout. McAulife claims he will be fit for the hottest and best Griffo can give him.

Solomon English, of Baltimore, and John Ball, of Newark, N. J., fought to a draw early yesterday morning ten miles from Baltimore Frank H. Bosworth was referee. IT IS PERJURY NOW, Mrs. Annie Alten Held on the More Serious Charge.

It Was Grady's Little Surprise When She Asked Her Release.

Her Threatening Letter to Arnold Proved a Costly Affair.

Mrs. Annie Alten, thirty-three years old, who was arrested last week and arraigned before Justice Grady in the Police Court, charged Nathan Arnold, forty-three years old manufacturer of linings at 25 and 29 West Houston street, with sending him threatening letters, was again exam-ined to-day before the same Justice sitting in the rear room of the Court. At her last examination an additional harge of sending obscene her, and she was held in $500 on small her, and she was held in $500 on seal charge but was subsequently released on securing ball.

At that time she said her name was Anna F. Arnold and that she was the common law wife of the complainant having begun such relations with him in October, 1852, which continued until January 1884, when he left her, and she wrote to him requesting the return of her photograph.

The complaint alleges that Arnold has never recognized her, but that their relations were only meretricious. He became tired of the woman and wished to be rid of her. Then she began persecul-

There is but little that is comme Jerome Park yesterday, and to the aver age bettor and backers of form it wa age bettor and backers of form it was but little short of a hideous nightmars. The fields originally were not large, and after Secretary McIntyre used the blue pencil they had been sadly depleted. Two races had three starters, and in cach instance the winners were at prohibitive odds, such as the talent don't care to touch. Four horses started in two races, and five in the remaining two making a total of twenty-four horses that went into the starter's hands. Bandit, at 1 to 10, and Kinston, at 1 to 5, were the only two winning favorities. Sims succeeded in landing four winners and the finishes between Adelbert and Shelly Tuttle and W.
